ELSEVIER

Geomorphology 11 (1995) 353–354

GEOMORPHOLOGY

Contents Volume 11 (1994/95)

Publisher's Note v
Introduction vii

The quintessential systematist: Henri Baulig
M. Derruau 1
Flood geomorphology of Arthurs Rock Gulch, Colorado: paleoflood history
C.F. Waythomas and R.D. Jarrett 15
Sediment yield determination using uranium-series radionuclides: the case of The Wash and Fenland drainage basin, eastern England
A.J. Plater, R.E. Dugdale and M. Ivanovich 41
Towards a definition of topographic divisions for Italy
F. Guzzetti and P. Reichenbach 57
Magnetostratigraphy of cave sediments, Wyandotte Ridge, Crawford County, Indiana: towards a regional correlation
P.P. Pease, B. Gomez and V.A. Schmidt 75

Book Reviews 83

Newsletter of the International Association of Geomorphologists 89

Fractal physiography?
S.I. Outcalt, K.M. Hinkel and F.E. Nelson 91
On the multistage development of etch forms
C.R. Twidale and J.R. Vidal Romani 107
Equilibrium, scale and inheritance in geomorphology
F. Ahnert 125
Channel change in relation to meltwater flooding, Bas Glacier d'Arolla, Switzerland
J. Warburton 141
Morphological and morphostructural features of Kuwait
J.S. Al-Sulaimi and S.M. El-Rabaa 151

Book Reviews 169

Sublimation and aeolian sand movement from a frozen surface: experimental results from Presqu'ile Beach, Ontario
D. van Dijk and J. Law 177
Analysis of linear sand dune morphological variability, southwestern Kalahari Desert
J.E. Bullard, D.S.G. Thomas, I. Livingstone and G.F.S. Wiggs 189
Glacial and periglacial deposits of the Tumbledown Cliffs area, James Ross Island, West Antarctica
J. Lundqvist, M. Lilliesköld and K. Östmark 205
Landslides triggered by earthquakes and their relations with faults and mountain slope geometry: an example from Ecuador
A. Tibaldi, L. Ferrari and G. Pasquarè 215
Effect of surface roughness on runoff and erosion in a Mediterranean ecosystem: the role of fire
H. Lavee, P. Kutiel, M. Segev and Y. Benyamini 227

The effects of large organic debris on sediment processes and stream morphology in Vermont
D.M. Thompson 235
Flow-separation berms downstream of a hydraulic jump in a bedrock channel
P.A. Carling 245

Book Reviews 255

Acknowledgement 259

Effects of direct revegetation on the hydrology, erosion and sediment yield of an abandoned deposit of coal-mine refuse
G.A. Olyphant and D. Harper 261
Flow structure at an asymmetrical stream confluence
B.L. Rhoads and S.T. Kenworthy 273
Alluvial dolines in the central Ebro basin, Spain: a spatial and developmental hazard analysis
M.A. Soriano and J.L. Simón 295
High (ground) water levels and dune development in central Australia: TL dates from gypsum and quartz dunes around Lake Lewis (Napperby), Northern Territory
X.Y. Chen, J. Chappell and A.S. Murray 311
Shoreline forms and deposits in Gallocanta Lake (NE Spain)
F.J. Gracia Prieto 323
The response of slope and channel systems to various types of extreme rainfall: A comparison between the temperate zone and humid tropics
W. Froehlich and L. Starkel 337

Book Reviews 347

Newsletter of the International Association of Geomorphologists 351